Financial Guarantee for CFA and How They Impact the Final Plat

If a Development Bond, Cash Escrow, Escrow Agreement, Letter of Credit, or Statement of Appropriate Funding is used:

- The final plat can be recorded after the CFA has been executed and all other comments are addressed.
- Once the final plat is recorded, the building permit can be applied for.

If a Completion Agreement is used:

- The final plat cannot be recorded until AFTER all of the infrastructure necessary to serve the development is constructed, inspected, and accepted by the City.
- This can cause significant delay between initial final plat submittal and final plat recording.

VII. FEE PAYMENTS:

The non-refundable Administrative Fee of $2,508.75 shall be paid at the time of application.

Material Testing and Inspection Fees must be paid before the CFA will be executed by the City.

Please include the City Project Number and fee type (administrative, inspection, testing, or cash escrow) in the check's memo line.

Preliminary Use of Material Testing and Inspection Fees:

Upon payment of the material testing and inspection fees, receipt of an executed CFA by the City and submittal of the distribution package to the City, the City may use these fees for any project-related costs, which may include charges by City contractors related to scheduling or attending pre-construction meetings. If this project is formally withdrawn, the City will retain an amount equal to any actual or outstanding costs incurred through the date of project withdrawal; the remaining material testing and inspection fees will be refunded to the Developer.
